The solution to the climate crisis is simple: to significantly reduce our emissions. But we must start now, and we must pull together.

Covid-19 has shown us that rapid change is possible. Air traffic has decreased dramatically because we have had no choice, but we now need to apply this thinking to our response to the climate crisis.

There is simply no room for air travel if we are to achieve the required emissions reduction. A single flight can take up our entire annual individual carbon budget and for many of us, flying is our single largest source of emissions.

Not only is going flight free an efficient way to reduce our own emissions, it can influence those around us. We are strongly influenced by each others' behaviour. If many of us show that we are prepared to do what it takes to solve the climate crisis, many more will follow.

More and more people are choosing not to fly because of the climate crisis. Could you join them?
